CALLES MOVES TO KEEP GOVERNMENT INTACT

CHECK EFFECT OF OBREGON ASSASSINATION

FEARS LATTER MAY BECOME SPARK WHICH MAY DESTROY GOVERNMENT

TROOPS MASSED IN BARRACKS, CENSORSHIP CLAMPED ON PRESS

By GESFORD F. FINE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Mexico City, July 18.—President Calles moved swiftly today to prevent the assassination of president-elect, Alvaro Obregon, from becoming the spark that would destroy his government.

Troops were massed in barracks, public gathering places were closed during the night, three high police officials were replaced by more loyal men and a censorship was clamped down on the press.

Unless authorities find that he can give them additional information about the plot, General Obregon's assassin, will be executed immediately.

It appeared this morning that the outrage was an individual matter, not linked, as at first assumed, with any widespread political move against the government.

The assassin who shot Obregon six times at close range as the president-elect sat at the luncheon table with a group of his friends in the La Bombilla Cafe in the wealthy suburb of San Angel yesterday afternoon, now is believed to be Jose Juan Gonzales.

He was at first described as Juan Escapulario, an amateur cartoonist, and it was on the pretext of showing the general a drawing that he succeeded in approaching Obregon in the cafe.

After he had been saved from the fury of Obregon's friends, whose first impulse was to slay him at once, the assassin made this statement:

"I have done what I came to do. I killed Obregon because I wanted Christ to be king and to reign completely, not partially."

President Calles, who according to the extras, may continue in the presidency for two more years as a result of the assassination, wasted no time in his attempts to stifle revolutionary tendencies.

All theaters, cabarets, saloons and other public gathering places were closed. Three highest officials of the police department summarily were replaced.

All three of the new appointees closely were alligned to the Obregon cause.

Obrgeon died as had his predecessor in office, Venustiano Carranza, by an assassin's bullet.

Obregon was unopposed for the presidency in the recent national election—his two opponents having been assassinated months before.

The general had been in many recent conferences with leaders.

It was during one of these conferences at which Obregon was killed.

He had called Col. Ricardo Topete, Senator Valdz Ramirez, former Foreign Minister Aaron Saenz and his campaign director, Colonel Juan James, to the restaurant for a luncheon discussion of national affairs.

As the general conferred with his friends the assassin, Juan, approached with a caricature.

It was of Colonel Topete and the assassin requested permission to show it to Obregon. The former president was agreeable and glanced at the caricature.

The assassin pushed a small revolver into Obregon's back and fired six times. Topete rushed to the assassin, seized him and was aided by friends in an attempt to kill the man.

General Cruz, the chief of police, entered the restaurant and stopped those attempts with the statement: "Wait until we can see who's back of this."

He led the assassin away.

Obregon's friends had little difficulty in removing him to his car immediately. They started a furious drive into the capital to the Obregon town home.

En route, the car was met by one driven by Obregon's son, Humberto. He was attracted by the haste and peered inside. When he saw his father he wheeled and hurried home.

Humberto Obregon and several of the former president's friends lifted the general from the car at the residence, and just as they entered the house Obregon died.

Gen. Obregon's body lay in state today at the national palace, to which it was taken at 10 P. M. yesterday. A guard of honor of high officials surrounded it.

The body was to be taken from the palace at 1 P. M., EST, and placed in a special train for transfer to Obregon's home at Cajeme, in Sonora state, for burial. Senora Obregon is at Novojoa, Sonora.

Meanwhile the assassin was heavily guarded. He refused to give his name, other than Juan.

There was an intimation—wholly without confirmation — that Gonzales had been connected with the attempt to kill Obregon by bombing his motor car last winter.

The full effect of the outrage cannot be predicted now. The open commission of congress, representing the senate and chamber, has called a session for 11 A. M. today. This commission represents congress when congress is not in session.

The situation is complicated through the fact that Obregon had not yet officially when proclaimed president. The congress does not proclaim a president elected until it meets in September and it seems probable Calles will issue an order of no election.

A report had been spread that Louis N. Morones, secretary of labor and regarded as Obregon's chief political enemy, also had been assassinated. This was denied.

STANFORD STADIUM OPENS AUGUST 11

THRONG EXPECTED TO SURPASS EVERYTHING IN GRIDIRON HISTORY

Palto Alto, Cal., July 18.—(U.P.)—Gates of Stanford stadium, where thousands gather each fall to watch important football games, will swing open August 11 to a throng that is expected to surpass any that ever attended a gridiron spectacle in the huge bowl.

There will be the blare of bands, the display of banners and cheering, but no gesticulating cheerleaders swinging megaphones.

Herbert Hoover, who worked his way through the engine ring college from 1891 to 1895, will be notified officially he is the choice of the republican party for the presidency of the United States.

He will accept the honor with an address that is expected to contain his views on questions vital to the coming campaign.

Palo Alto, used to entertaining crowds, will be taxed to accomodate those who will come to the college town to take part in the important event.

Those in charge are confident that between 90,000 and 100,000 will attend the ceremony and arrangements have been made to enlarge the seating capacity accordingly.

Hoover will enter the town next Friday to be greeted by the entire population of 15,000 persons and others who will come from all parts of California.

About noon the party will cross San Francisco bay on a special ferry and a caravan of decorated automobiles will file to the city hall, where Hoover will speak briefly from the balcony.

Then the parade will proceed 37 miles down the peninsula to Palo Alto.

The official committee of reception contains the names of many long-standing friends of Hoover's and some who were fellow students during Stanford undergraduate days.

Hoover is expected to reply briefly to his welcome and then retire to his home.

He has said that he plans an outing in the mountains near Placerville before the notification date.

Exhibitions in the pavilion brought a tangible evidence of chapter background and history and they aroused interest and competition. The exhibit was opened under the direction of Bertha Beisegl, Alpha Pi, and Irene Williams, Alpha Rho. Particularly interesting exhibits were those of Alpha Kappa, Sigma, Alpha Omega, Alpha Upsilon, and Beta Nu.

Immediately after the exhibit, the song fest and contest was held in Edgewater convention hall under the direction of LaBelle Stephens, Alpha Pi. Each district sang a specified number of selections after which three prizes were awarded.

A musical tea sponsored by Mrs. W. H. Fawcett proved a delightful occasion Tuesday afternoon. Carried through by LaBelle M. Stephens, the convention's capable musical director, the numbers were given in enjoyable manner.

Inspired by the gift of Mrs. Fawcett, wife of the owner of Breezy Point Lodge, of several beautiful prizes adorned by the Theta crest, the Kite, the official paper of the convention, decided to appropriate one and sponsor a feature story contest. The prizes are a lovely dressing table clock of gold and rose enamel, a musical powder box, enamelled in green, and a bridge card and score pad also adorned with the silver crest. Thetas are asked to write of their convention impressions and the clock will be awarded in recompense for repertorial timeliness.

Wednesday night tables will be designated by Greek letters and members will gather to celebrate the first chapter dinner of convention. Minnesota's symbol, the pine, will be used in decoration and songs of the various chapters will be featured. Kathryn Carson, Upsilon, is in charge of this affair.

Duluth alumnae are anxious to entertain visitors returning from convention through that city. Plans will be made for a pleasant affair, possibly a supper party on Saturday night.

Wednesday morning the business session will consider college group reports, alumnae session report; Theta social, intellectual, moral aims in modern life. Grand President Mrs. Lebrecht will give her report on scholarship. At 1 P. M. will be the scholarship luncheon. Delegates of chapters are to receive awards and those individuals present who have won scholarship honors 1926-28 will be honor guests. The awards will be presented by the Grand President. Committee meeting will be held on college chapter affairs and alumnae chapter and club affairs.

At 3:30 P. M. there is a treasure hunt for the college girls, and a bridge tournament for alumnae. Following the chapter dinner comes the stunt party.

KRASSIN KEEPS ON BORING THROUGH ICE

INTENT ON SAVING MORE MEN FROM THE ARCTIC WASTES

12 MEN STILL LOST, SOME MAY HAVE DIED WHEN ITALIA CRASHED

By EUGENE LYONS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Moscow, July 18—The ice breaker Krassin, which already has brought 16 men out of the Arctic alive after most of them had given up hope of again reaching civilization, will not quit its errand of mercy until one last search has been made for 12 others lost in that ice-bound area.

The Krassin, with its cargo of rescued explorers, was ordered by the soviet relief commission to continue to Advent Bay to refuel so that the second great search could be started immediately.

The 12 men still lost may be dead. Six may have died in an explosion aboard the dirigible Italia as it floated away after the crash on May 25. Six others may have died when Roald Amundsen led his airplane expedition into the ice area.

But observers on the Krassin said there were was reason to believe these 12 might still be living.

Chase advocates a policy of state support of a small fire-fighting force with an extensive volunteer organization within call.

PLAN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

DEMOCRATIC HEADQUARTERS TO CONTEST IN SENATORIAL ELECTIONS

New York, July 18. — (UP) — Plans for a vigorous campaign in every state where senators are to be elected this fall were considered at conferences at democratic headquarters here today, between Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland, chairman of the senatorial campaign committee, and other leaders.

Tydings will confer with Gov. Smith at Albany tomorrow. He will be accompanied to Albany by Senator Harry B. Hawes of Missouri, who is to be in charge of the western senatorial campaign and who participated in the conferences today.

Senator Key Pittsman of Nevada, Senator Gerry of Rhode Island, chairman of the advisory committee, and John J. Raskob, chairman of the national committee, discussed the campaign with Tydings and Hawes.

Tydings said that he came here to co-ordinate senatorial campaigns with the presidential fight.

Three minutes later, the monoplane had torn down a fence, caused a near-panic among air field attaches and after a series of uncontrolled gyrations, crashed to earth.

DISCUSS PHASES OF AGRICULTURAL RELIEF SOUGHT

ARTHUR NELSON, OF ST. PAUL, HAS CONFERENCE WITH NOMINEE

GOV. HAMMILL OF IOWA BOARDS TRAIN AT MISSOURI VALLEY

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Aboard Hoover Special Train, nearing Omaha, Neb., July 18. — Farm belt leaders of Minnesota, Iowa and Nebraska today boarded the special train of Herbert Hoover, the republican presidential nominee, to discuss the unwritten phases of agricultural relief to be embodied in his acceptance speech at Palo Alto, Calif., August 11.

Arthur Nelson, former mayor of St. Paul and senatorial candidate of the republican regulars against Senator Henrik Shipstead, Minnesota farmer-laborite, disembarked from the train early this morning after urging the nominee to amplify the party platform by promising the farmers every mode of farm relief outside of the McNary-Haugen bill.

Gov. John H. Hammill of Iowa came aboard for breakfast at Missouri Valley, Iowa. He gave Hoover the sentiment of the corn belt. He was to be followed later in the day by Gov. Adam McMullen of Nebraska who is to come aboard at Fremont, Nebraska. Hammill and McMullen were supporters of former Gov. Lowden of Illinois in the pre-convention campaign. They are both McNary-Haugenites but have been reserved front seats on the Hoover band wagon.

Hoover has been giving serious thought to the farm relief provisions of his acceptance speech. He discussed the matter with President Coolidge in his two-day visit at Superior. He holds much the same views as the president but he wants to suggest a definite mode of agricultural relief which will hold in line the normally republican states of the farm belt.

These suggestions are expected to include the Curtis proposal for development of co-operative marketing along Hoover efficiency lines. A government fund would be offered to encourage the development of such efficiency.

Nelson and the others agreed the farm belt would be safe if Hoover suggested such a plan. Nelson said Hoover would carry Minnesota. They said farm leaders were reluctant to vote for Gov. Alfred E. Smith, democratic nominee, because of his eastern tendencies.

Aboard Hoover Special Train, Fremont, Neb., July 18.—Elaborate reception plans made by his home state of California were cancelled today by Herbert Hoover, republican presidential nominee, after he received word that C. D. Henry, Mrs. Hoover's father, had died.

Since leaving Superior, Wis., last night the Hoover train had sped along with several stops eliminated in order that Mrs. Hoover might stop off at Placerville to see her 84-year-old father. But at Omaha Mr. Hoover gently broke the news that the race with death had been lost.

San Francisco and nearby cities were immediately notified that all welcome plans must be postponed until after the Aug. 11 notification ceremony.

MAY NAME FIRST WOMAN FEDERAL JUDGE IN COUNTRY

Washington, July 18.—(U.P.)—If Herbert Hoover is elected president in November, he probably will appoint the first woman federal judge in the country's history.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, long has desired a federal judgeship, and Hoover, if successful, is expected to reward her work for the administration and her yeoman service in behalf of his nomination by such a post.

There is no vacancy now on the federal bench in California, but she is expected to get the first one.

POLICE SEIZE FORTUNE IN GEMS ALLEGED TO HAVE BEEN SMUGGLED

Warsaw, Poland, July 18.—(U.P.)—Police in a lightning-like raid on the jewelry exchange today seized $1,000,000 worth of gems alleged to have been smuggled. Some dealers either swallowed their assortments of rubies, sapphires and other precious stones or threw them from windows.

AIRPLANE PATROLS ARE FEASIBLE TO SPOT FOREST FIRES

Fergus Falls, Minn., July 18.—(U.P.)—Airplane patrols to be used in detecting forest fires iin Minnesota's north woods should prove feasible, according to Ray P. Chase, state auditor, who completed an airplane tour of Itasca state park.

The hydro-airplane should prove the most practical type, Chase said. The hydro-plane could be landed on the ground or on lake surfaces.

Chase advocates a policy of state support of a small fire-fighting force with an extensive volunteer organization within call.

PLAN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

DEMOCRATIC HEADQUARTERS TO CONTEST IN SENATORIAL ELECTIONS

New York, July 18. — (UP) — Plans for a vigorous campaign in every state where senators are to be elected this fall were considered at conferences at democratic headquarters here today, between Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland, chairman of the senatorial campaign committee, and other leaders.

Tydings will confer with Gov. Smith at Albany tomorrow. He will be accompanied to Albany by Senator Harry B. Hawes of Missouri, who is to be in charge of the western senatorial campaign and who participated in the conferences today.

Senator Key Pittsman of Nevada, Senator Gerry of Rhode Island, chairman of the advisory committee, and John J. Raskob, chairman of the national committee, discussed the campaign with Tydings and Hawes.

Tydings said that he came here to co-ordinate senatorial campaigns with the presidential fight.

"We expect to fight it out in every state where senators are to be elected this fall," he said, "and have as good a chance to control the next senate as the republicans."

LEVINE AS FLYER WRECKS FENCE

Curtiss Field, L. I., July 18.—(U.P.)—The trans-Atlantic monoplane Columbia is a wreck—testifying to the daring of Charles A. Levine, first trans-oceanic air passenger.

Levine came to Curtiss Field last night accompanied by a Major Fleming and boarded the Columbia. Major Fleming, a brave man according to his own confession, climbed in beside him.

Three minutes later, the monoplane had torn down a fence, caused a near-panic among air field attaches and after a series of uncontrolled gyrations, crashed to earth.

DISCUSS PHASES OF AGRICULTURAL RELIEF SOUGHT

ARTHUR NELSON, OF ST. PAUL, HAS CONFERENCE WITH NOMINEE

GOV. HAMMILL OF IOWA BOARDS TRAIN AT MISSOURI VALLEY

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Aboard Hoover Special Train, nearing Omaha, Neb., July 18. — Farm belt leaders of Minnesota, Iowa and Nebraska today boarded the special train of Herbert Hoover, the republican presidential nominee, to discuss the unwritten phases of agricultural relief to be embodied in his acceptance speech at Palo Alto, Calif., August 11.

Arthur Nelson, former mayor of St. Paul and senatorial candidate of the republican regulars against Senator Henrik Shipstead, Minnesota farmer-laborite, disembarked from the train early this morning after urging the nominee to amplify the party platform by promising the farmers every mode of farm relief outside of the McNary-Haugen bill.

Gov. John H. Hammill of Iowa came aboard for breakfast at Missouri Valley, Iowa. He gave Hoover the sentiment of the corn belt. He was to be followed later in the day by Gov. Adam McMullen of Nebraska who is to come aboard at Fremont, Nebraska. Hammill and McMullen were supporters of former Gov. Lowden of Illinois in the pre-convention campaign. They are both McNary-Haugenites but have been reserved front seats on the Hoover band wagon.

Hoover has been giving serious thought to the farm relief provisions of his acceptance speech. He discussed the matter with President Coolidge in his two-day visit at Superior. He holds much the same views as the president but he wants to suggest a definite mode of agricultural relief which will hold in line the normally republican states of the farm belt.

These suggestions are expected to include the Curtis proposal for development of co-operative marketing along Hoover efficiency lines. A government fund would be offered to encourage the development of such efficiency.

Nelson and the others agreed the farm belt would be safe if Hoover suggested such a plan. Nelson said Hoover would carry Minnesota. They said farm leaders were reluctant to vote for Gov. Alfred E. Smith, democratic nominee, because of his eastern tendencies.

Aboard Hoover Special Train, Fremont, Neb., July 18.—Elaborate reception plans made by his home state of California were cancelled today by Herbert Hoover, republican presidential nominee, after he received word that C. D. Henry, Mrs. Hoover's father, had died.

Since leaving Superior, Wis., last night the Hoover train had sped along with several stops eliminated in order that Mrs. Hoover might stop off at Placerville to see her 84-year-old father. But at Omaha Mr. Hoover gently broke the news that the race with death had been lost.

San Francisco and nearby cities were immediately notified that all welcome plans must be postponed until after the Aug. 11 notification ceremony.

MAY NAME FIRST WOMAN FEDERAL JUDGE IN COUNTRY

Washington, July 18.—(U.P.)—If Herbert Hoover is elected president in November, he probably will appoint the first woman federal judge in the country's history.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, long has desired a federal judgeship, and Hoover, if successful, is expected to reward her work for the administration and her yeoman service in behalf of his nomination by such a post.

There is no vacancy now on the federal bench in California, but she is expected to get the first one.

Saving the Children

When Ben B. Lindsey as Juvenile Judge in Denver was trying to awaken the public to the terrible facts of Juvenile Delinquency he was a target for all kinds of attacks. Clergymen thundered at him; politicians threatened him; scandal mongers assailed him. "Lair, charlatan, notoriety seeker," they shouted. "It couldn't happen to my girl."

Yet Judge Lindsey was telling the truth—always. And he was helping, shielding, saving, the daughters of some of the very people who so bitterly attacked him. It could and it did happen to their daughters, and it can happen to almost any man's child unless the parents can be awakened to the danger that confronts the youth of today. "The Road to Ruin," which opens at the Park theatre next Monday is a very frank and straightforward presentation of the facts of Juvenile Delinquency and affords serious food for thought for all parents as well as containing a tremendous warning to all the younger people.

Owing to the great number of mosquitoes in the woods this summer, logging operations are not satisfactory for the reason that it is being found difficult to hold men. The prospective work in the harvest fields and the inducements offered thereby to get away from mosquitoes is said to keep the men working now in the woods very uneasy, and the operators on the anxious seat.

There is a move on foot it is understood to renew a request and made to the N. P. some time ago to put gates at the Sixth and Eighth street crossings by some of the people of the city. It is thought that the building of the platform in the center yard between the tracks, has increased the danger.

"POSITIVE MOTOR OIL GOES FARTHER DEEP-ROCK LASTS LONGER GREASE LUBRICATION"

The new motor cars spell higher compression, higher engine speeds, higher temperatures. This makes it even more important to use the best oil. Deep-Rock is made from a pure Mid-Continent paraffine base which has no superior in lubricating quality, regardless of geographic traditions. It spreads over the moving parts a tough film of oil which keeps its full body in high temperatures. Deep-Rock reduces engine wear and makes frequent oil changing unnecessary. Therefore it is the most economical to use.

Miss Perry is the staff pianist of station KYA, conducted by the San Francisco Examiner. She entered the radio field a little over three years ago, specializing in comedy numbers. A real woman comedian is something rare and Miss Perry built up a large following among the radio fans of the coast. About a year ago her ability was further recognized and she was promoted to the position of staff pianist.

When opportunity presents itself she has entertained at lodges, conventions and other large gatherings. She made a complete tour of the Pantages circuit and is still playing Sundays in theatres on the coast.

Her program tomorrow evening is a varied one and includes singing and piano solos. Those privileged to hear her tomorrow and make her acquaintance, will be pleased to hear her again when she appears over Station WEBC, Duluth, Spalding Hotel, on this coming Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

The new motor cars spell higher compression, higher engine speeds, higher temperatures. This makes it even more important to use the best oil. Deep-Rock is made from a pure Mid-Continent paraffine base which has no superior in lubricating quality, regardless of geographic traditions. It spreads over the moving parts a tough film of oil which keeps its full body in high temperatures. Deep-Rock reduces engine wear and makes frequent oil changing unnecessary. Therefore it is the most economical to use.

HAS NEW AGENCY

Gateway Electric in New Location, Now Handling A. C. Majestic Radios

The Gateway Electric Company at its new location at 712 Laurel street was recently appointed Brainerd agents for the A. C. Majestic radio company. The 1929 radio set models are just being introduced to the dealers, who are surprised at the improvements that have been made over last year's models.

The first announcement to come out was that of the Majestic set, manufactured in Chicago which seems fairly typical for comparison of what the 1929 standard will be. It operates an alternating current light sockets without the use of batteries of any kind. The tone quality and the range of notes that can be heard are far superior to any set of last year. Great selectivity has been accomplished by using a single large high-geared illuminated dial so that stations can be separated with great ease.

Another typical advance of the year is the New Dynamic Power Loud Speakers that will be heard in the console type models. The amplifying power of these speakers will bring in the faintest signals of long distance stations clear and strong without distortion, while the power controls on the set may be turned down if the volume of the nearby stations is too strong.

More than $500 already has been put up on the race, which will start Aug. 1 from Times square.

MRS. CLEM AND JOHN J.

THE Clem Shaver household is not unanimous in their conception of politics. As remarked by the Duluth News Tribune, Mrs. Clem Shaver, wife of the retiring chairman of the Democratic committee, bolts the ticket because Al Smith is wet.

"We Democratic women," she says in her statement, "will not support the dripping wet ticket and joke platform named by the Tammany delegates at the recent convention in Houston."

John J. Raskob, chairman on the finance committee of General Motors and a former Republican and member of the Union League club of Philadelphia, accepts Al Smith's appointment as chairman of the Democratic committee because, as he says, "I see an opportunity of performing some constructive service by helping relieve the country of the damnable affliction of prohibition."

Of course this is not Mrs. Clem's first outbreak. Back in 1924 when her husband was managing the campaign of John W. Davis, she accused Charles W. Bryan, Democratic candidate for vice president, of being a pacifist and therefore unfit for the office.

But with the wife of the retiring Democratic chairman bolting the ticket because Smith is Tammany and wet and a former Republican and captain of industry taking the Democratic chairmanship to help rid the country of prohibition you have a picture of what is liable to happen in both parties before election in November.

Yet Doctor Work says the issue is the tariff.

The real issues in the coming campaign will be prohibition and Tammany and all the king's horses and all the king's men cannot change them or persuade the people otherwise.

SUPREMACY CHALLENGED

SINCE the disaster that wrecked the "Shenandoah," the dirigible "Los Angeles" has been the only airship of its type in the world in regular service, says the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette. It has reigned for several years as the undisputed "queen" of the air.

This proud position will soon be disputed. The Zeppelin works in Germany have just completed work on the "Count Zeppelin," which Dr. Hugo Eckener, the designer, is planning to fly around the world. It was christened this week with clouds of liquid oxygen instead of the traditional champagne, and will carry with it Germany's hopes for the recovery of the leading place which it formerly held in lighter-than-air pioneering.

In England work is being rushed on a gigantic dirigible which it is hoped to place in regular trans-Atlantic service. This will be far larger than the Los Angeles, and will be built to carry 100 persons. A fashionable "tea" was held in its luxurious cabin a short time ago, with the purpose of impressing upon leaders in British public life and society the comforts which will be possible on long air voyages.

Public confidence in the practicability of large airships was shaken by a series of tragic disasters after the war. The test flights of the German and British dirigibles will accordingly be watched with the keenest interest, for in a sense, they represent a final endeavor of lighter-than-air enthusiasts to prove their contention that dirigible rather than airplanes hold out the best hope for long distance aerial travel.

SENATOR JAMES REED

THE DISPATCH writer met Senator James Reed last summer at one of the lakes of the Brainerd Lake Region and considered him a fine, courteous man, a perfect gentleman blessed with a keen wit, a man of wonderful and compelling personality.

But "Jim" on the stump, or heckling a witness, or delivering a speech in the senate, can use a lot of sarcastic language.

The Milwaukee Journal claims Senator "Jim" Reed seems to have a lot of quinine in his system and presumes he cannot help being bitter. The Journal continues:

"Somebody to whom he will listen, however, ought to take him aside and tell him that when he questions Herbert Hoover's Americanism he not only stultifies himself, but most likely aids Mr. Hoover. 'I have promised to exert every effort to bring about the governor's (Smith's) election,' he says.

"And his conception of helping seems to be to make the asinine remark that 'If we are going to have an Englishman for president, I would prefer the Prince of Wales.' Perhaps it would be best for 'Senator Jim' to stay in Missouri where the home folks don't mind him, and do all he can to swing that state to Governor Smith. He might be able to be useful there instead of just spiteful."

A GOOD MOVE

You know what an "ambulance chaser" is, of course. He is a lawyer who keeps tabs on all accidents—traffic mishaps in particular. When a man is hurt the lawyer who sends a representative to him and urges him to sue for damages. If the suit brings nothing the lawyer promises not to present a bill; if it wins, the lawyer will collect a fee usually on a 50-50 basis.

It is a vicious, widespread practice, and the Ohio Bar does well to condemn it. It causes many unjustified lawsuits to be filed, works many injustices, fills the courts with needless litigation and does no one any good. The sooner it is ended the better.—Bemidji Daily Pioneer.

A LEADING INDUSTRY

THERE has been considerable comment recently on the fact that finance has turned a favorable eye on the publishing field, says the Editor and Publisher and the Fourth Estate of New York. But publishing now ranks as the tenth American industry in point of value of products or service, the eleventh industry in point of investment, and the twelfth industry in point of number of employes.

It has become a profitable business by reason of the skill and enterprise of its votaries and its amazing appeal, in all conceivable forms, to every literate member of society. It has become a safe business because it has accepted the principle of organization and has subscribed to rational and orderly methods.

DAIRY FACTS

DAIRY COWS ARE ROUGHAGE EATERS

Certain writers on economic problems state that in the future farm animals must more and more depend on roughage and the by-products of grain that are not suitable for human food. They say that this necessity will arise to supply food for the rapidly increasing numbers in the world's population. Whether this condition ever does come or not, we do know that the grain is the expensive part of the cow's ration, and the more nearly roughage can be made to supply the feed, the cheaper will milk and milk products be produced, writes W. H. Woodley, extension dairyman, college of agriculture, University of Arkansas. Grains, high in protein content, are especially expensive.

The farmer is fortunate in that he can raise a roughage that is high in protein and supply this much needed milk producing element in hay cheaper than he can buy it in grain. There is probably no section where some kind of legume hay cannot be raised. An acre of land that will produce two tons of soy bean hay yields three times the digestible protein that the same acre will produce in corn (ears and stover) and five times more than prairie or other grass hays can be raised. It yields about the same amount of total digestible nutrients as the acre of corn, and twice the amount in prairie or grass hay. So to the cow it is both hay and grain.

The milk cow with her four stomachs and her ability to consume about five times as much feed as the horse, is essentially a roughage animal, and can only do her best work, and do it most economically when she is supplied with all the roughage such as mentioned above, that she will consume.

A farmer can buy good grain in the market and the kind that he wants, but even if it was as economic to do so, he can seldom find hay of the quality and kind that it is best to feed, so in self-defense he must raise it.

Homemade Fly Spray Is Beneficial in Summer

Most owners of small herds will prefer to buy a prepared fly spray, but others prefer to mix their own. The following ingredients can be purchased at any good drug store and have been used successfully by the Iowa experiment station:

Coal-tar dip, 4½ quarts; fish oil, 4½ quarts; coal oil, 3 quarts; whale oil, 3 quarts; oil of tar, 1½ quarts; laundry soap, 3 bars.

In preparing the spray, the three bars of soap should be dissolved in warm water. Then the other ingredients can be added separately and enough water added to bring the total amount up to thirty gallons.

This spray, like others, is most effective for a few hours after using. It has a pronounced odor which aids it as a fly repellant, but it does not seem to affect the milk unless some drops in the utensils. The oil in the spray collects dirt but most of this will wash out when the cows are out in the rain.

Lack of Proper Feeding Accountable for Losses

There is plenty of good authority for the statement that one-third of our dairy cows are unprofitable, one-third just about break even and the remaining third only are profitable. The situation is accountable in two ways. First, there is lack of proper feeding. A dairy cow must have a properly balanced ration in order to do her best. Second, there are dairy cows whose breeding is such that they can never be made into profitable producers, no matter how they are fed. Just a glance at some cows will tell any person that they will never be suitable for profitable dairy production, but there are large numbers of the in-between kind that can only be told after they have been tested and fed properly.

Cut Dairy Heifer Cost by Reducing Protein

That tremendous saving in the cost of raising dairy heifers can be made by reducing the amount of protein in the ration heretofore considered the minimum amount necessary for normal growth, has been shown by 12 years of investigation at the Missouri College of Agriculture. Former standards for the minimum amount of protein are really 20 to 60 per cent too high, according to the tests. As protein is the most expensive part of the ration and is usually the part that must be purchased, a tremendous saving can be made on the $400,000,000 required annually to maintain the present cow population.

Improvement Material

Assuredly, pure-bred bulls must come from an ancestry that has proved to be stronger in production than the grade herds into which they are going. The fact that there were more grade herds in the Iowa cow-testing list than there were pure-bred herds does not prove that farmers must cease to look to pure breds for herd improvement material, however. In the first place, the highest producing pure-bred herds are seldom put on test in cow-testing associations.

DAIRY FACTS

TWO PROVEN SIRES LOST TO FARMERS

When are dairymen going to use proven sires instead of untried bull calves? asks D. L. Fout, field dairyman with the University of Idaho agricultural extension division. When, also, will dairymen keep a promising young bull until testing records have either proved his worth or indicated him worthless? Then he relates how dairymen proved two sires in Idaho without knowing it and turned them to butchers just as they were nearing the age of greatest usefulness.

Association records from Canyon county show that seven daughters of one Jersey bull produced 3,086 pounds of milk and 121 pounds of butterfat each more than their dams. This bull was butchered before the daughters freshened and was not given an opportunity to prove his worth. The owner stated that every daughter of this bull later excelled her dam. Because he wanted another bull, and thought he needed one, the herd sire proven but not recognized as such was sold to the butcher. This dairyman has been sorry ever since, writes O. A. Fitzgerald of Utah, in the Dairy Farmer.

The Gooding county (Idaho) tester is encouraging dairymen to be cautious in any move to dispose of a theoretically good bull that has not been given a full chance. The tester reports the story of a Holstein sire whose daughters produce 1,095 pounds of milk and 65.5 pounds of butterfat more than their dams but which was turned to an inglorious end before his value was known.

Cow testing associations records so far tabulated show that about one-third of the pure-bred sires are lowering production of their daughters in comparison with their dams, about one-third are holding their own or increasing slightly, and the great increase is coming from the last third. The higher the herd production the more difficult it is to bring increases, hence the greater need for a bull of proved ability, reasons Mr. Fourt.

The cow testing association record shows without guesswork which bulls should be kept and which should go to the butcher. "If these proven sires are to be of value to the dairy industry they must be alive and in service and not butchered," insists the Idaho dairy leader.

Contamination of Milk Is Blamed on Consumer

The consumer is sometimes responsible for the contamination of the milk. Milk bottles should not be taken into a sick room, because infectious diseases can be spread by carrying infected bottles back to the dairy farm. If bottles are left where there are contagious diseases, they should not be collected by the milkman until they have been properly disinfected by the board of health. In the case of typhoid fever or other serious diseases which may be carried in the milk, it is better for the consumer to put out a covered dish for the milk or have it delivered to some member of the household. Until official permission has been granted, no milk bottles should be removed from a home in which there is or has recently been a case of communicable disease. The consumer should not use milk bottles for holding vinegar, kerosene, or liquids other than milk.

Hold Milk Flow During Summer by Good Feeding

Summer losses in milk production are probably the heaviest of the year, and that is so mainly because cows are asked to live too much on their imagination. If the cattle do not seem contented and satisfied on coming from pasture, supplemental feeds should be supplied. Grain alone at this time is not sufficient, as the cows actually need more roughage. If silage is not available it may be possible to mow some grass crop for a time, if no special provision has been made for soiling crops. If neither is available, it is well to use hay to supplement the pasture.

Twin Bull Calves Found Successful as Breeders

The twin bull calves are just as likely to become successful mature breeding animals as any single bull calf would be. Likewise twin heifer calves are just as likely to be successful as breeding cows as single heifer calves. It is only when a bull calf is born as a twin with a heifer calf that usually the heifer calf does not prove a successful breeding cow and usually will not produce calves at all. Even in that case, the bull calf is just as likely to become a successful breeding bull as bull calves produced singly.

Developing a Herd

One good cow well fed and cared for will make more money than three or four poor ones. It is, therefore, a better practice to add a few good cows and take a little time to develop a herd through the use of good bulls. Cows not only must be good ones but also they must be well fed if good returns are to be secured. They will need some grain in addition to pasture. Furthermore, the producing ability of every cow in the herd should be measured by weighing and testing the milk.

Advertisements bring you USEFUL news

Only yesterday, it seems, we read of balloon tires, radio, electric ranges. Today they count as necessities and magic newcomers are knocking at our doorways . . . electric refrigeration . . . the oil-burning furnace . . . a phonograph that changes its own records.

Even as you read these lines, men in Chicago and Atlanta, Philadelphia and Detroit, are patiently putting together strange devices that, tomorrow, will save labor, cut costs, or give pleasure.

When these inventions become practical, advertisements will be the first to tell you about them: What they will do; how much they cost; where you can get them.

Advertisements bring you personal news, information about the material things that increase your health, comfort and happiness. They tell you the latest practical news phrased in words that are brief, understandable and honest. They help you save money and enjoy the best things in life.

MRS. CLEM AND JOHN J.

THE Clem Shaver household is not unanimous in their conception of politics. As remarked by the Duluth News Tribune, Mrs. Clem Shaver, wife of the retiring chairman of the Democratic committee, bolts the ticket because Al Smith is wet.

"We Democratic women," she says in her statement, "will not support the dripping wet ticket and joke platform named by the Tammany delegates at the recent convention in Houston."

John J. Raskob, chairman on the finance committee of General Motors and a former Republican and member of the Union League club of Philadelphia, accepts Al Smith's appointment as chairman of the Democratic committee because, as he says, "I see an opportunity of performing some constructive service by helping relieve the country of the damnable affliction of prohibition."

Of course this is not Mrs. Clem's first outbreak. Back in 1924 when her husband was managing the campaign of John W. Davis, she accused Charles W. Bryan, Democratic candidate for vice president, of being a pacifist and therefore unfit for the office.

But with the wife of the retiring Democratic chairman bolting the ticket because Smith is Tammany and wet and a former Republican and captain of industry taking the Democratic chairmanship to help rid the country of prohibition you have a picture of what is liable to happen in both parties before election in November.

Yet Doctor Work says the issue is the tariff.

And Josephus Daniels declares solemnly that it is not prohibition.

Mrs. Clem Shaver and John J. Raskob don't agree with them.

The real issues in the coming campaign will be prohibition and Tammany and all the king's horses and all the king's men cannot change them or persuade the people otherwise.

SUPREMACY CHALLENGED

SINCE the disaster that wrecked the "Shenandoah," the dirigible "Los Angeles" has been the only airship of its type in the world in regular service, says the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette. It has reigned for several years as the undisputed "queen" of the air.

This proud position will soon be disputed. The Zeppelin works in Germany have just completed work on the "Count Zeppelin," which Dr. Hugo Eckener, the designer, is planning to fly around the world. It was christened this week with clouds of liquid oxygen instead of the traditional champagne, and will carry with it Germany's hopes for the recovery of the leading place which it formerly held in lighter-than-air pioneering.

In England work is being rushed on a gigantic dirigible which it is hoped to place in regular trans-Atlantic service. This will be far larger than the Los Angeles, and will be built to carry 100 persons. A fashionable "tea" was held in its luxurious cabin a short time ago, with the purpose of impressing upon leaders in British public life and society the comforts which will be possible on long air voyages.

Public confidence in the practicability of large airships was shaken by a series of tragic disasters after the war. The test flights of the German and British dirigibles will accordingly be watched with the keenest interest, for in a sense, they represent a final endeavor of lighter-than-air enthusiasts to prove their contention that dirigible rather than airplanes hold out the best hope for long distance aerial travel.

SENATOR JAMES REED

THE DISPATCH writer met Senator James Reed last summer at one of the lakes of the Brainerd Lake Region and considered him a fine, courteous man, a perfect gentleman blessed with a keen wit, a man of wonderful and compelling personality.

But "Jim" on the stump, or heckling a witness, or delivering a speech in the senate, can use a lot of sarcastic language.

The Milwaukee Journal claims Senator "Jim" Reed seems to have a lot of quinine in his system and presumes he cannot help being bitter. The Journal continues:

"Somebody to whom he will listen, however, ought to take him aside and tell him that when he questions Herbert Hoover's Americanism he not only stultifies himself, but most likely aids Mr. Hoover. 'I have promised to exert every effort to bring about the governor's (Smith's) election,' he says.

"And his conception of helping seems to be to make the asinine remark that 'If we are going to have an Englishman for president, I would prefer the Prince of Wales.' Perhaps it would be best for 'Senator Jim' to stay in Missouri where the home folks don't mind him, and do all he can to swing that state to Governor Smith. He might be able to be useful there instead of just spiteful."

A GOOD MOVE

You know what an "ambulance chaser" is, of course. He is a lawyer who keeps tabs on all accidents—traffic mishaps in particular. When a man is hurt the lawyer who sends a representative to him and urges him to sue for damages. If the suit brings nothing the lawyer promises not to present a bill; if it wins, the lawyer will collect a fee usually on a 50-50 basis.

It is a vicious, widespread practice, and the Ohio Bar does well to condemn it. It causes many unjustified lawsuits to be filed, works many injustices, fills the courts with needless litigation and does no one any good. The sooner it is ended the better.—Bemidji Daily Pioneer.

A LEADING INDUSTRY

THERE has been considerable comment recently on the fact that finance has turned a favorable eye on the publishing field, says the Editor and Publisher and the Fourth Estate of New York. But publishing now ranks as the tenth American industry in point of value of products or service, the eleventh industry in point of investment, and the twelfth industry in point of number of employes.

It has become a profitable business by reason of the skill and enterprise of its votaries and its amazing appeal, in all conceivable forms, to every literate member of society. It has become a safe business because it has accepted the principle of organization and has subscribed to rational and orderly methods.

DAIRY FACTS

DAIRY COWS ARE ROUGHAGE EATERS

Certain writers on economic problems state that in the future farm animals must more and more depend on roughage and the by-products of grain that are not suitable for human food. They say that this necessity will arise to supply food for the rapidly increasing numbers in the world's population. Whether this condition ever does come or not, we do know that the grain is the expensive part of the cow's ration, and the more nearly roughage can be made to supply the feed, the cheaper will milk and milk products be produced, writes W. H. Woodley, extension dairyman, college of agriculture, University of Arkansas. Grains, high in protein content, are especially expensive.

The farmer is fortunate in that he can raise a roughage that is high in protein and supply this much needed milk producing element in hay cheaper than he can buy it in grain. There is probably no section where some kind of legume hay cannot be raised. An acre of land that will produce two tons of soy bean hay yields three times the digestible protein that the same acre will produce in corn (ears and stover) and five times more than prairie or other grass hays can be raised. It yields about the same amount of total digestible nutrients as the acre of corn, and twice the amount in prairie or grass hay. So to the cow it is both hay and grain.

The milk cow with her four stomachs and her ability to consume about five times as much feed as the horse, is essentially a roughage animal, and can only do her best work, and do it most economically when she is supplied with all the roughage such as mentioned above, that she will consume.

A farmer can buy good grain in the market and the kind that he wants, but even if it was as economic to do so, he can seldom find hay of the quality and kind that it is best to feed, so in self-defense he must raise it.

Homemade Fly Spray Is Beneficial in Summer

Most owners of small herds will prefer to buy a prepared fly spray, but others prefer to mix their own. The following ingredients can be purchased at any good drug store and have been used successfully by the Iowa experiment station:

Coal-tar dip, 4½ quarts; fish oil, 4½ quarts; coal oil, 3 quarts; whale oil, 3 quarts; oil of tar, 1½ quarts; laundry soap, 3 bars.

In preparing the spray, the three bars of soap should be dissolved in warm water. Then the other ingredients can be added separately and enough water added to bring the total amount up to thirty gallons.

This spray, like others, is most effective for a few hours after using. It has a pronounced odor which aids it as a fly repellant, but it does not seem to affect the milk unless some drops in the utensils. The oil in the spray collects dirt but most of this will wash out when the cows are out in the rain.

Lack of Proper Feeding Accountable for Losses

There is plenty of good authority for the statement that one-third of our dairy cows are unprofitable, one-third just about break even and the remaining third only are profitable. The situation is accountable in two ways. First, there is lack of proper feeding. A dairy cow must have a properly balanced ration in order to do her best. Second, there are dairy cows whose breeding is such that they can never be made into profitable producers, no matter how they are fed. Just a glance at some cows will tell any person that they will never be suitable for profitable dairy production, but there are large numbers of the in-between kind that can only be told after they have been tested and fed properly.

Cut Dairy Heifer Cost by Reducing Protein

That tremendous saving in the cost of raising dairy heifers can be made by reducing the amount of protein in the ration heretofore considered the minimum amount necessary for normal growth, has been shown by 12 years of investigation at the Missouri College of Agriculture. Former standards for the minimum amount of protein are really 20 to 60 per cent too high, according to the tests. As protein is the most expensive part of the ration and is usually the part that must be purchased, a tremendous saving can be made on the $400,000,000 required annually to maintain the present cow population.

Improvement Material

Assuredly, pure-bred bulls must come from an ancestry that has proved to be stronger in production than the grade herds into which they are going. The fact that there were more grade herds in the Iowa cow-testing list than there were pure-bred herds does not prove that farmers must cease to look to pure breds for herd improvement material, however. In the first place, the highest producing pure-bred herds are seldom put on test in cow-testing associations.

DAIRY FACTS

TWO PROVEN SIRES LOST TO FARMERS

When are dairymen going to use proven sires instead of untried bull calves? asks D. L. Fout, field dairyman with the University of Idaho agricultural extension division. When, also, will dairymen keep a promising young bull until testing records have either proved his worth or indicated him worthless? Then he relates how dairymen proved two sires in Idaho without knowing it and turned them to butchers just as they were nearing the age of greatest usefulness.

Association records from Canyon county show that seven daughters of one Jersey bull produced 3,086 pounds of milk and 121 pounds of butterfat each more than their dams. This bull was butchered before the daughters freshened and was not given an opportunity to prove his worth. The owner stated that every daughter of this bull later excelled her dam. Because he wanted another bull, and thought he needed one, the herd sire proven but not recognized as such was sold to the butcher. This dairyman has been sorry ever since, writes O. A. Fitzgerald of Utah, in the Dairy Farmer.

The Gooding county (Idaho) tester is encouraging dairymen to be cautious in any move to dispose of a theoretically good bull that has not been given a full chance. The tester reports the story of a Holstein sire whose daughters produce 1,095 pounds of milk and 65.5 pounds of butterfat more than their dams but which was turned to an inglorious end before his value was known.

Cow testing associations records so far tabulated show that about one-third of the pure-bred sires are lowering production of their daughters in comparison with their dams, about one-third are holding their own or increasing slightly, and the great increase is coming from the last third. The higher the herd production the more difficult it is to bring increases, hence the greater need for a bull of proved ability, reasons Mr. Fourt.

The cow testing association record shows without guesswork which bulls should be kept and which should go to the butcher. "If these proven sires are to be of value to the dairy industry they must be alive and in service and not butchered," insists the Idaho dairy leader.

Contamination of Milk Is Blamed on Consumer

The consumer is sometimes responsible for the contamination of the milk. Milk bottles should not be taken into a sick room, because infectious diseases can be spread by carrying infected bottles back to the dairy farm. If bottles are left where there are contagious diseases, they should not be collected by the milkman until they have been properly disinfected by the board of health. In the case of typhoid fever or other serious diseases which may be carried in the milk, it is better for the consumer to put out a covered dish for the milk or have it delivered to some member of the household. Until official permission has been granted, no milk bottles should be removed from a home in which there is or has recently been a case of communicable disease. The consumer should not use milk bottles for holding vinegar, kerosene, or liquids other than milk.

Hold Milk Flow During Summer by Good Feeding

Summer losses in milk production are probably the heaviest of the year, and that is so mainly because cows are asked to live too much on their imagination. If the cattle do not seem contented and satisfied on coming from pasture, supplemental feeds should be supplied. Grain alone at this time is not sufficient, as the cows actually need more roughage. If silage is not available it may be possible to mow some grass crop for a time, if no special provision has been made for soiling crops. If neither is available, it is well to use hay to supplement the pasture.

Twin Bull Calves Found Successful as Breeders

The twin bull calves are just as likely to become successful mature breeding animals as any single bull calf would be. Likewise twin heifer calves are just as likely to be successful as breeding cows as single heifer calves. It is only when a bull calf is born as a twin with a heifer calf that usually the heifer calf does not prove a successful breeding cow and usually will not produce calves at all. Even in that case, the bull calf is just as likely to become a successful breeding bull as bull calves produced singly.

Developing a Herd

One good cow well fed and cared for will make more money than three or four poor ones. It is, therefore, a better practice to add a few good cows and take a little time to develop a herd through the use of good bulls. Cows not only must be good ones but also they must be well fed if good returns are to be secured. They will need some grain in addition to pasture. Furthermore, the producing ability of every cow in the herd should be measured by weighing and testing the milk.

START MATCH PLAY IN STATE AMATEUR GOLF TOURNEY

32 QUALIFIERS PAIR AT BEMIDJI, FIRST 18 HOLES

ROSCOE FAWCETT, MINNEAPOLIS, MEDALIST, PAIRED WITH FERNBERG

MRS. W. H. FAWCETT FLIES TO GOLF TOURNEY IN SEA-PLANE

Bemidji, Minn., July 18.—(U.P.)—Match play in the Minnesota amateur golf tournament began here today with the 32 qualifiers paired for the first 18 holes.

One 18-round match will be played this morning and another 18-hole match this afternoon.

Championship play will be conducted on Saturday in 36 holes.

Roscoe Fawcett, Minneapolis, with a 147 total for the 36 hole qualifying round, was considered by some the favorite. Fawcett's low card bettered by one stroke the cards turned in by Jake Wetherby and Allan Labatt, both of Minneapolis.

The medalist was paired today with Ben Feinberg, Fairmont, whose 82 yesterday added to a 79 on Monday gave him a total of 161.

The remaining successful qualifiers were chiefly from Minneapolis with a sprinkling of representatives from St. Paul, Duluth, Winona, Rochester and Golden Valley.

Five players with scores of 167 played an extra round to determine which two should remain in the championship flights. Dr. C. E. Perry, St. Paul, and R. N. Albinson, Golden Valley, emerged victorious. C. W. Newhall, Faribault, competing under the standards of the White Bear Golf club. Tommy Roberts, Winona, and G. Carmichael, Minneapolis, dropped by the wayside.

Breezy Point, Minn., July 18. — Mrs. W. H. Fawcett who flew from Breezy Point to Bemidji in a Ryan hydroplane remained there today to watch her brother-in-law, Captain Roscoe Fawcett, compete in the state amateur golf tournament.

Mrs. Fawcett, accompanied by her secretary and Pilot Delmar L. Snyder, made the flight yesterday in the swift hydroplane which is a sister ship to the famous Spirit of St. Louis in which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh crossed the Atlantic.

W. R. Hiller, playing at Bemidji, made this score: 50-45—95. His brother, E Hiller of Crookston made 50-50—100.

South Side dropped Northeast last evening 7 to 3 in a city league game which was protested by Northeast because the Southsiders used Olsen on the mound. Whitlock started in the pitcher's box for South Side and pitched to the first six men, five of which touched him for safe hits. When Olsen took over the mound duty at this stage of the game Northeast protested that Olsen was not qualified to pitch in the city league as he pitches Sunday baseball for which he receives pay.

Aside from many petty and sometimes heated arguments, the game was a good one. Jarboe started on the mound for Northeast but was later relieved by Richmond who came in from centerfield. They were touched for seven safe hits and were credited with five strikeouts. Northeast was credited with nine hits but they were mostly bunched in the first inning. Olsen fanned 11 of the Northeast boys.

This was the first of four postpoed games that are to complete the first half of the city league schedule. The recent storms have kept the Municipal field in such a condition that it was impossible to play until last evening.

Last night's game gives the Southsiders undisputed lead in the league race, the two teams having been deadlocked for the lead until last evening.

INTEREST in walking has recently been revived to some extent and it's a sport in which the fans of the present day might well take an extremely active interest because, after all, walking is not only a sport but a first-class exercise.

The interest was revived considerably because a youngster named Gunn, the son of a Western millionaire, walked from coast to coast with C. C. Pyle's Bunion Derbyites and en route he broke all existing walking records.

While the members of Pyle's troupe jog-trotted, ran or merely lagged along the roadside stretching from California to New York City, this Gunn youngster stepped a measured tread and walked the entire distance. A week after the finish of the Derby of Blistered Feet most of the entrants entered a 26-hour race in Madison Square Garden in New York City. Young Gunn again did his stuff for the benefit of the few customers who grew lonesome together in the big arena.

But Gunn didn't mind the lack of attendance. Hour after hour he swung around the small oval, arms and legs attuned to a steady gait which never varied.

Gunn's feat has recalled other well-known walkers and has brought up such famous names as Dan O'Leary and Edward Payson Weston. The latter, one of the best showmen of the trampers, is now retired. Some years ago he was a rival of O'Leary, but today he couldn't step with the jaunty Dan despite the fact that they are both the same age, each having been born in the year 1839.

In the face of his almost ninety years, O'Leary is still an active walker and does his fifteen miles every day. He not only does it, but he sets a pace which is rather difficult for a younger man to follow. He hopes to live to be 100, and on his hundredth birthday he hopes to celebrate by walking ten miles in two hours.

There was a time when six-day hikes were popular sporting events. The bicycles, the automobiles, the airships and the dancing marathons and cross-country hikes have rather dimmed the glory of those days when the names of O'Leary and Weston had their telling effect, but the young-old Dan O'Leary continues to pound down the sod along the sides of the hard roads which for speed's sake have replaced the dusty highways which were in vogue when O'Leary was in his prime and a walking race was something to get all excited about.

O'Leary virtually walked his way to the United States from his birthplace in Ireland. In other words, he earned his passage by winning a fifty-mile walk from Skibbereen to Cork. Each of the eight contestants put up an entry fee of a pound and with the eight-pound pot thus acquired Dan bought his way to America. That was when he was 25 years old.

One of Dan's outstandnig victories was over Weston in 1877 on the track in Agricultural Hall in London. It was a six-day go-as-you-please affair and O'Leary walked 520 miles to Weston's 510. During the six-day grind Dan was only off the track for twenty-six hours.

Instead of sprouting a bay window—a sign of age—O'Leary is taking off weight as he grows older. Today he weighs 130, whereas he used to tip the scales at 140. He's keenly alert mentally and doesn't spend his time bemoaning the passing of "those good old days."

In referring to Gunn he says: "He's a great kid and a boy wonder."

Champion Gene Ready For Big Tussle

MRS. W. H. FAWCETT FLIES TO GOLF TOURNEY IN SEAPLANE

Bemidji, Minn., July 18.—(U.P.)—Match play in the Minnesota amateur golf tournament began here today with the 32 qualifiers paired for the first 18 holes.

One 18-round match will be played this morning and another 18-hole match this afternoon.

Championship play will be conducted on Saturday in 36 holes.

Roscoe Fawcett, Minneapolis, with a 147 total for the 36 hole qualifying round, was considered by some the favorite. Fawcett's low card bettered by one stroke the cards turned in by Jake Wetherby and Allan Labatt, both of Minneapolis.

The medalist was paired today with Ben Feinberg, Fairmont, whose 82 yesterday added to a 79 on Monday gave him a total of 161.

The remaining successful qualifiers were chiefly from Minneapolis with a sprinkling of representatives from St. Paul, Duluth, Winona, Rochester and Golden Valley.

Five players with scores of 167 played an extra round to determine which two should remain in the championship flights. Dr. C. E. Perry, St. Paul, and R. N. Albinson, Golden Valley, emerged victorious. C. W. Newhall, Faribault, competing under the standards of the White Bear Golf club, Tommy Roberts, Winona, and G. Carmichael, Minneapolis, dropped by the wayside.

Breezy Point, Minn., July 18. — Mrs. W. H. Fawcett who flew from Breezy Point to Bemidji in a Ryan hydroplane remained there today to watch her brother-in-law, Captain Roscoe Fawcett, compete in the state amateur golf tournament.

---

W. R. Hiller, playing at Bemidji, made this score: 50-45—95. His brother, E Hiller of Crookston made 50-50—100.

SOUTH SIDE WINS PROTESTED CITY LEAGUE GAME

NORTHEAST CLUB OBJECTS TO USE OF OLSEN AS S. S. PITCHER

South Side dropped Northeast last evening 7 to 3 in a city league game which was protested by Northeast because the Southsiders used Olsen on the mound. Whitlock started in the pitcher's box for South Side and pitched to the first six men, five of which touched him for safe hits. When Olsen took over the mound duty at this stage of the game Northeast protested that Olsen was not qualified to pitch in the city league as he pitches Sunday baseball for which he receives pay.

Aside from many petty and sometimes heated arguments, the game was a good one. Jarboe started on the mound for Northeast but was later relieved by Richmond who came in from centerfield. They were touched for seven safe hits and were credited with five strikeouts. Northeast was credited with nine hits but they were mostly bunched in the first inning. Olsen fanned 11 of the Northeast boys.

This was the first of four postpoed games that are to complete the first half of the city league schedule. The recent storms have kept the Municipal field in such a condition that it was impossible to play until last evening.

Last night's game gives the Southsiders undisputed lead in the league race, the two teams having been deadlocked for the lead until last evening.

HAS 'TECHNIQUE OF BUMMING WELL ORGANIZED'

Atlanta, Ga., July 18.—(U.P.)—A "youth with poetic soul" was bumming his way toward Durham, N. C., yesterday with his would-be benefactor, Gutzon Borglum, world famous sculptor, close on his heels.

The "lost boy," Judy Rayford, 19, who was "found" at his home in Mobile, Ala., after a continental search by Borglum, was "lost" again today. By a strange twist of fate, Rayford hit the dusty trail for Durham this morning without knowing that the man who hopes to develop his genius was here looking for him.

The boy, termed by Borglum, "a youth with a soul," stopped in Atlanta on his way from Mobile to Durham. When Borglum learned he was here, the sculptor made a hurried trip to Atlanta, but was too late.

Upon finding the youth had departed Borglum left for Greenville and Spartanburg by way of Athens, Ga., hoping to overtake the ambitious lad.

Rayford is on his way to Durham where he was to met the sculptor and arrange for a summer course at Duke university.

Admiration for Borglum and a desire to be a sculptor led Rayford to hitch hike from Durham to San Antonio last year to seek an interview with the famous sculptor at the latter's studio there.

Borglum was "busy" at the time so Rayford, somewhat disappointed, left some of his work to be examined and went back to Duke.

"A couple of days later," Borglum said here, "I read his poems and studied the sketches he had left with me. I knew I had discovered a genius as I started to search for him.

"When I said he was a 'boy with a soul,' I was only describing a something I found in him, a rare quality of genius and the ability and energy to carry his dreams to completion," Borglum explained.

The young Mobile collegian, however, resents the "poetic soul" appellation.

"Poetic soul?—Why, by gosh! I'm a bum," he said here.

And a "bum" he is for he has bummed his way the country over for the last six years. "I've got the technique of bumming pretty well organized," he said.

HAS 'TECHNIQUE OF BUMMING WELL ORGANIZED'

Atlanta, Ga., July 18.—(U.P.)—A "youth with poetic soul" was bumming his way toward Durham, N. C., yesterday with his would-be benefactor, Gutzon Borglum, world famous sculptor, close on his heels.

JERICHO OUTING AT LUM PARK SUNDAY

Big Time For Odd Fellows, Their Families and Friends is Scheduled

ARRANGE SPORTS PROGRAM

Every Lodge in Northern Minnesota to be Represented by Large Delegations

The biggest time of the year for Odd Fellows, their families and friends, is scheduled for next Sunday, July 22 at Lum Park, when the annual Jericho Outing gets in full swing on that day.

Every lodge in northern Minnesota will be represented with a large delegation with prominent visitors and speakers from all over the country. A large program of sports has been arranged, more varied and more numerous than ever before. Among the sports events will be races between boys under 5 years, boys between 5 and 7 years, two older boys and two older girls races, 2 men and 2 womens races, and mans tug of war and a womens tug of war. There will also be a kittenball game between one of the best teams on the range and the Brainerd team besides a baseball game between the Brainerd I. O. O. F. team and Northeast Brainerd. This game promises to be a classic of the day as both of these teams are good ones and are bitter rivals in the city.

Another feature of the day will be swimming races, conditions at the park being ideal for this form of sport. More races between boys and girls will also be held between boys and girls of 15 years or younger, and races of boys and girls of 15 years and over.

Supper is scheduled for 6 o'clock after which the large Lum Park pavilion will be taken over for dancing at 8 o'clock. One of the best popular orchestras in this section has been engaged.

Friends and members of the order are still relating the wonderful time they had at the Jericho Outing last year and that this one will exceed the standard set last year is considered an established fact by all in charge of the event.

U. C. T. DANCE FRIDAY

Grant Moore and His Rinkey Dinks to Furnish Music at Lum Park

When Grant Moore and his Rinkey Dinks play for the U. C. T. at Lum Park, Friday, July 20, those attending are going to be treated to some of the best dance music ever brought to Brainerd, not only will they hear music as only the darkies can play it, but they will be treated to some very fine singing and entertainment.

This is the same orchestra that played for the U. C. T. last summer, and will again repeat the novel sleep dance as well as some new novel dance numbers. There is something about music, when played by colored artists that seems different from all others, possibly it is because the darkeys are the originators of jazz and they put all their feeling in the rhythm when playing, to applaud them only spurs them on to greater efforts.

During the past winter this orchestra accompanied the Colored Revue that played in one of the large music halls in London. Their engagement was for one month, but proved so popular that the engagement was extended to three months. Since their return to this country, they have played an extended dance tour through the east, and upon coming west got no further than Minneapolis where they are located at the Wigwam at St. Louis Park for the summer.

Only because the U. C. T. were promised a date this year would they leave their location to come to Brainerd. It costs a great deal of money to bring an orchestra like this and it is hoped that the public will respond by attending the U. C. T. dances. By your patronage the U. C. T. can continue bringing in the finest dance orchestras obtainable.

Ladies without an escort will not be admitted.

Russian Canary Grass Planted

Russian reed canary grass seed imported from Russia has been planted for experiment at the State Experimental Station at Crow Wing.

Mysticism surrounds the seed as even the superintendent of the farm, Fred Johnson knows very little about the actual growth of the reed. The seed is being experimented on by the University of Minnesota before information on it is announced. The Russian canary grass is said to have an equivalent food value of alfalfa if cut at the right time and properly handled.

ALFALFA CROPS MOST PROMISING

Farmers Realize Advantages of Alfalfa; 6,000 Acres Planted

FOOD VALUE IS HIGH

Experimental Station at Crow Wing Grows the Forage Under Many Conditions

Alfalfa crops throughout the county look particularly promising this season, a survey of the farm area today shows.

Five years ago alfalfa was practically absent from the fields of Crow Wing county but through the work of County Agent E. G. Roth, armers are realizing the advantages n growing this feed. It is now proclaimed the best paying crop in the ounty.

At the present time there are 6,000 acres in Crow Wing county seeded with alfalfa. The forage has the same food value as bran per ton and with bran selling at $33 a ton the advantages of growing alfalfa are apparent. As high as six tons of alfalfa to the acre is being grown in Crow Wing county.

Realizing the value of alfalfa the state experimental station at Crow Wing county has devoted a major share of their ground to experimenting in growing it under all existing ground and weather conditions.

The station is supervised by Fred Johnson under the direction of Dr. F. J. Alway, chief of the soils division of the University of Minnesota and County Agent E. G. Roth.

REPUBLICAN WOMEN HAVE MEETING

Are Entertained by Mrs. Rose Parker at Her Apartments Tuesday Afternoon

DISCUSS "ELECTORAL COLLEGE"

Speakers Include Mrs. Parker, Mrs. Heald, Mrs. Lammon, Mrs. Paul, Mrs. Powell

(Contributed)

The republican women spent another very pleasant afternoon yesterday with Mrs. Rose Parker, whose apartments presented such an historic as well as artistic atmosphere, with her lovely rugs, quaint tapestries and "real" furniture, i. e. furniture carved and polished by hand. Machines are wonderful but no machine can put the soft smooth, satin appearing, finish on wood as that produced by the human touch. In Mrs. Heald's article, "Are We Wasting Womanpower?" that same "power of human touch" was emphasized by Mrs. Heald in contradiction to Mrs. Norris's suggestion of community kitchens and community nurseries. Mrs. Heald won.

The defunct "Electoral College" received its just deserts through Mrs. Parker's reading and open discussion of same.

The editorials from Itasca Iron News and the Delphian Quarterly, read by Mrs. Lammon, presented some of the finer qualities of Hoover, Curtis, Smith and Robinson.

Mrs. W. E. Paul's "I am for Hoover" by Daniel Paling was excellent and Mrs. Paul was requested to preserve the article for future use.

Mrs. Rose Powell, of St. Paul visited the group and expressed appreciation of the idea of women getting together for the reading and discussion of national affairs.

Mrs. Gary Heald, corner of Second and Juniper streets, invited the ladies to meet with her next Tuesday afternoon. At this meeting Mrs. J. P. Anderson of Broadway will read "Sunshine and Friendliness"; further numbers on the program will be announced later.

Come and bring your neighbors, your clippings and your mending.

U. C. T. DANCE FRIDAY

Grant Moore and His Rinkey Dinks to Furnish Music at Lum Park

When Grant Moore and his Rinkey Dinks play for the U. C. T. at Lum Park, Friday, July 20, those attending are going to be treated to some of the best dance music ever brought to Brainerd, not only will they hear music as only the darkies can play it, but they will be treated to some very fine singing and entertainment.

This is the same orchestra that played for the U. C. T. last summer, and will again repeat the novel sleep dance as well as some new novel dance numbers. There is something about music, when played by colored artists that seems different from all others, possibly it is because the darkeys are the originators of jazz and they put all their feeling in the rhythm when playing, to applaud them only spurs them on to greater efforts.

During the past winter this orchestra accompanied the Colored Revue that played in one of the large music halls in London. Their engagement was for one month, but proved so popular that the engagement was extended to three months. Since their return to this country, they have played an extended dance tour through the east, and upon coming west got no further than Minneapolis where they are located at the Wigwam at St. Louis Park for the summer.

Only because the U. C. T. were promised a date this year would they leave their location to come to Brainerd. It costs a great deal of money to bring an orchestra like this and it is hoped that the public will respond by attending the U. C. T. dances. By your patronage the U. C. T. can continue bringing in the finest dance orchestras obtainable.

Ladies without an escort will not be admitted.

Russian Canary Grass Planted

Russian reed canary grass seed imported from Russia has been planted for experiment at the State Experimental Station at Crow Wing.

Mysticism surrounds the seed as even the superintendent of the farm, Fred Johnson knows very little about the actual growth of the reed. The seed is being experimented on by the University of Minnesota before information on it is announced. The Russian canary grass is said to have an equivalent food value of alfalfa if cut at the right time and properly handled.

ALFALFA CROPS MOST PROMISING

Farmers Realize Advantages of Alfalfa; 6,000 Acres Planted

FOOD VALUE IS HIGH

Experimental Station at Crow Wing Grows the Forage Under Many Conditions

Five years ago alfalfa was practically absent from the fields of Crow Wing county but through the work of County Agent E. G. Roth, armers are realizing the advantages n growing this feed. It is now proclaimed the best paying crop in the ounty.

At the present time there are 6,000 acres in Crow Wing county seeded with alfalfa. The forage has the same food value as bran per ton and with bran selling at $33 a ton the advantages of growing alfalfa are apparent. As high as six tons of alfalfa to the acre is being grown in Crow Wing county.

Realizing the value of alfalfa the state experimental station at Crow Wing county has devoted a major share of their ground to experimenting in growing it under all existing ground and weather conditions.

The station is supervised by Fred Johnson under the direction of Dr. F. J. Alway, chief of the soils division of the University of Minnesota and County Agent E. G. Roth.

Testimonials, both verbal and written, of the benefits and popularity of the Brainerd Tourist Camp to visitors have become quite popular recently.

This one coming from Mr. and Mrs. L. Dague, Tulsa, Okla., today emphasizes to a certain degree the pleasure with which the camp is received by tourists:

"Brainerd Park Board: This morning as we are leaving I want to thank you and commend you for the efficient camp grounds to the public. It is a credit to your city, spoken of far and near. The men in charge are very considerate and kind to all yet true to their post of duty. The water is fine, gas plates and tables handy and when the new baths and toilets are completed the camp will be even better. This is our third summer in Brainerd and you have almost weaned us from our state. We thank you most sincerely."

HOLLAND FURNACES MAKE WARM FRIENDS

Love's Ecstasy
by May Christie

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

ALEDA RAY, pretty blue-eyed country girl, working in New York as a stenographer, is in love with Gary Chester, young engineer. She is living at the home of Marise de Rense, proprietor of the Harvest Moon cabaret. Marise, elderly and hard-working, is infatuated with Clive Mortimer, ne'er-do-well Englishman. The latter schemes, secretly, with Goldie de Rense, younger sister of Marise, to operate a private "post office" for blackmail. Marise, upon learning that Aleda is employed by W. B. Lingard, hysterically warns her to quit the job, but fails to explain why. Aleda sees Gary Chester leave the office with Lingard's wealthy niece, the Countess Dellamanca. The Countess, next morning in her luxurious hotel suite, reviews in retrospect her "past" and concludes, despite three marriages and wealth, she has missed happiness.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXIV.

AS she rested in her luxurious suite in the Park Avenue hotel, the one-time Mrs. Schumph — now Countess Dellamananca—looked back over her life.

Her thoughts were not happy ones. Despite her wealth and her position, she was a discontented woman. For she had put nothing into life.

But hadn't she been "crazy over" her third husband, Mario Dellamanca? Lying here in her bedroom with the shades drawn down (she didn't want to see the sunshine—it reminded her too much of Italy!)—the features of the handsome Count came up before her, ever and anon.....

She tried to shut the image out? Hadn't she quarreled with her Roman husband, and the chances were that he—being extraordinarily proud and obstinate—would never in this world take her back again?

He didn't want her back! That hateful and humiliating thought swept through her mind.

Neither her beauty nor her money—no, not even memory of the romantic dreams she had aroused in Dellamanca once—would have the power to blind his eyes to what she really was, a second time!

How those black eyes had flashed at her, in uttermost contempt!

"You say you bought me with your money? With the dollars of the poor Meester—how you call it?—Schumph?—whose life you made so mee-serable? Then I have fee-neeshed with you, and you will take all the dollars back again! Because I do not weesh to die prema-turely, through sorrow with having such a wife—like the poor Schumph!"

She had been so startled, then, that she had even forgotten to mock Mario's funny English, as she usually did. She had sailed for New York, a city she had not seen in six years—not since the death of Schumph, who had left her millions—to the surprise of everybody—since the pair had been "separated" many years!

"That sort of woman always comes out top dog!" the busybodies said, forgetting the long period when the lovely Inez had "dropped out" of everything, due to lack of funds.

Her life had indeed been a chequered one during the period of the "separation." Schumph had been curiously adamantine in the matter of an allowance—sometimes sending her a substantial check—and then ignoring her for months and even years.

She was an orphan by this time, and William B. Lingard—her uncle—and her old-maid sister were her nearest relatives. He had grown rich, but towards his niece he wasn't sympathetic. Indeed her finances were so strained for a time that she had even worked as a manicurist!

"Instead of being ashamed of it, it's about the only worth-while thing you ever did in your life!" William B. Lingard had informed her when one day she presented herself tearfully at his office. He had given her $500 to pay some debts she had contracted and at the same time a homily she did not relish. "If you want to you can come and live with your aunt and me, provided you behave decently and make yourself useful around the house."

Inez had availed herself of that, and for eighteen months had seemed to be an altered person. She was not devoid of brains, or, rather, acumen. The old-maid aunt was a colorless, negligible, kindly being, easy to deal with and "get round"—and William B. Lingard was only human and a man, and therefore open to judicious flattery!

The eighteen months were not so horribly unpleasant, then. Her aim was so to establish herself as to get the status of "adopted daughter"— not "just a failure of a niece"—and as her uncle was rising very rapidly and making lots of money, she would stay close to where her immediate interest lay!

The death of Schumph and her unexpected good luck in getting his millions (she hadn't realized that the old boy had been so rich, or she would have conducted herself in a more seemly manner!) was too, too providential. She dropped all thought of further camouflage and of sticking close to her uncle's money and fled to Europe with the spoils!

But her trials had softened the widow. For, meeting the handsome Dellamanca in Rome about a year or so later, she fell head over heels in love with, and married, the attractive nobleman.

Be it said for her that it was not alone the title. Mario—such a contrast to poor Schumph, thought she — had melted that hitherto invulnerable organ, Inez Schumph's heart.

There was a glorious honeymoon on the Italian lakes, a trip to India, a big-game expedition in East Africa (Mario was a crack shot in more ways than one, and a real sportsman!) — and for a period the Countess did forget her egotism, or it looked like that!

But now it seemed as though her third marriage was to go the way of the preceding ones, and here she was surrounded by sycophants (queer how she had such a fatal fascination for all — rotters and toadiers!), back in New York again!

She'd keep her chin up, anyhow. There was this queer ache in her heart for Mario — who had spurned her—but she wasn't going to pay attention to that ache.

"Bring me a hand-mirror," she called out now to her Italian maid. "And let's have a little sunshine after all! Pull up the shades!"

The girl moved up a blind or two, discreetly, so that a softly diffused light flooded the room.

The Countess Dellamanca, propped up in bed, surveyed her own reflection.

"H'm! I'm still young and pretty. Not so?" she inquired of the maid, as she turned and twisted the glass.

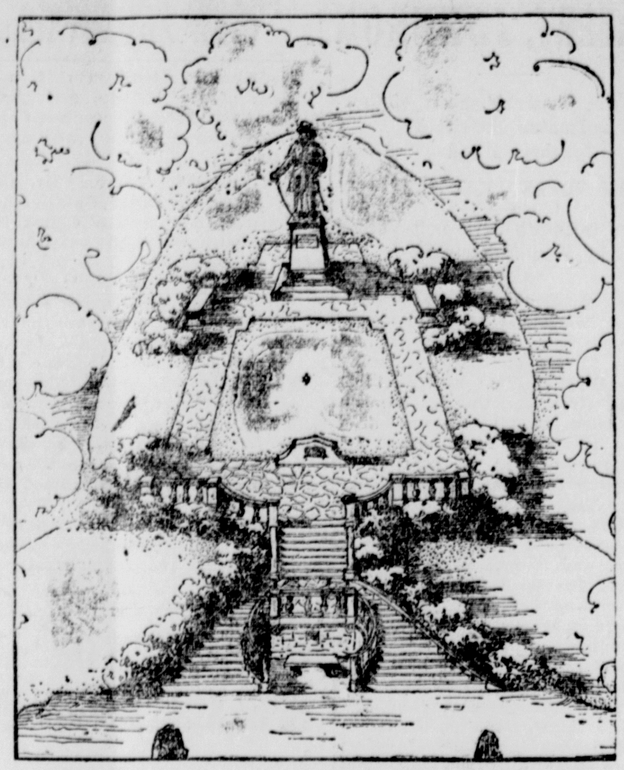

"Madame is beau-tee-ful!"

"Then I shan't hide my beauty! I will face the sunlight," said the Countess Dellamanca, beaming. "Call up Mr. Gary Chester and tell him I wish to lunch with him"

CHARLIE CHAPLIN in "THE CIRCUS"

Some idea as to the physical magnitude of Charlie Chaplin's production, "The Circus," which comes to the Lyceum theatre tonight for a three day run, may be had from figures compiled by George Webster, general statistician at the Chaplin studio.

Livestock housed at the Chaplin plant in Hollywood for a period of more than a year included elephants, lions, tigers, horses, mules, monkeys, pigs, dogs, cats, ducks, pigeons and geese. To properly feed and care for such an assortment of guests the commissary department was required to handle for many months, food items that totalled more than sixty thousand pounds, the greater bulk of this being in beef and tons of hay, corn, carrots, potatoes and bread.

Love's Ecstasy
by May Christie

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

ALEDA RAY, pretty blue-eyed country girl, working in New York as a stenographer, is in love with Gary Chester, young engineer. She is living at the home of Marise de Rense, proprietor of the Harvest Moon cabaret. Marise, elderly and hard-working, is infatuated with Clive Mortimer, ne'er-do-well Englishman. The latter schemes, secretly, with Goldie de Rense, younger sister of Marise, to operate a private "post office" for blackmail. Marise, upon learning that Aleda is employed by W. B. Lingard, hysterically warns her to quit the job, but fails to explain why. Aleda sees Gary Chester leave the office with Lingard's wealthy niece, the Countess Dellamanca. The Countess, next morning in her luxurious hotel suite, reviews in retrospect her "past" and concludes, despite three marriages and wealth, she has missed happiness.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXIV.

As she rested in her luxurious suite in the Park Avenue hotel, the one-time Mrs. Schumph — now Countess Dellamananca—looked back over her life.

Her thoughts were not happy ones. Despite her wealth and her position, she was a discontented woman. For she had put nothing into life.

But hadn't she been "crazy over" her third husband, Mario Dellamanca? Lying here in her bedroom with the shades drawn down (she didn't want to see the sunshine—it reminded her too much of Italy!)—the features of the handsome Count came up before her, ever and anon.....

She tried to shut the image out? Hadn't she quarreled with her Roman husband, and the chances were that he—being extraordinarily proud and obstinate—would never in this world take her back again?

He didn't want her back! That hateful and humiliating thought swept through her mind.

Neither her beauty nor her money—no, not even memory of the romantic dreams she had aroused in Dellamanca once—would have the power to blind his eyes to what she really was, a second time!

How those black eyes had flashed at her, in uttermost contempt!

"You say you bought me with your money? With the dollars of the poor Meester—how you call it?—Schumph?—whose life you made so mee-serable? Then I have fee-neeshed with you, and you will take all the dollars back again! Because I do not weesh to die prema-turely, through sorrow with having such a wife—like the poor Schumph!"

She had been so startled, then, that she had even forgotten to mock Mario's funny English, as she usually did. She had sailed for New York, a city she had not seen in six years—not since the death of Schumph, who had left her millions—to the surprise of everybody—since the pair had been "separated" many years!

"That sort of woman always comes out top dog!" the busybodies said, forgetting the long period when the lovely Inez had "dropped out" of everything, due to lack of funds.

Her life had indeed been a chequered one during the period of the "separation." Schumph had been curiously adamantine in the matter of an allowance—sometimes sending her a substantial check—and then ignoring her for months and even years.

She was an orphan by this time, and William B. Lingard—her uncle—and her old-maid sister were her nearest relatives. He had grown rich, but towards his niece he wasn't sympathetic. Indeed her finances were so strained for a time that she had even worked as a manicurist!

"Instead of being ashamed of it, it's about the only worth-while thing you ever did in your life!" William B. Lingard had informed her when one day she presented herself tearfully at his office. He had given her $500 to pay some debts she had contracted and at the same time a homily she did not relish. "If you want to you can come and live with your aunt and me, provided you behave decently and make yourself useful around the house."

Inez had availed herself of that, and for eighteen months had seemed to be an altered person. She was not devoid of brains, or, rather, acumen. The old-maid aunt was a colorless, negligible, kindly being, easy to deal with and "get round"—and William B. Lingard was only human and a man, and therefore open to judicious flattery!

The eighteen months were not so horribly unpleasant, then. Her aim was so to establish herself as to get the status of "adopted daughter"— not "just a failure of a niece"—and as her uncle was rising very rapidly and making lots of money, she would stay close to where her immediate interest lay!

The death of Schumph and her unexpected good luck in getting his millions (she hadn't realized that the old boy had been so rich, or she would have conducted herself in a more seemly manner!) was too, too providential. She dropped all thought of further camouflage and of sticking close to her uncle's money and fled to Europe with the spoils!

But her trials had softened the widow. For, meeting the handsome Dellamanca in Rome about a year or so later, she fell head over heels in love with, and married, the attractive nobleman.

Be it said for her that it was not alone the title. Mario—such a contrast to poor Schumph, thought she — had melted that hitherto invulnerable organ, Inez Schumph's heart.

There was a glorious honeymoon on the Italian lakes, a trip to India, a big-game expedition in East Africa (Mario was a crack shot in more ways than one, and a real sportsman!) — and for a period the Countess did forget her egotism, or it looked like that!

But now it seemed as though her third marriage was to go the way of the preceding ones, and here she was surrounded by sycophants (queer how she had such a fatal fascination for all rotters and toadiers!), back in New York again!

She'd keep her chin up, anyhow. There was this queer ache in her heart for Mario — who had spurned her—but she wasn't going to pay attention to that ache.

"Bring me a hand-mirror," she called out now to her Italian maid. "And let's have a little sunshine after all! Pull up the shades!"

The girl moved up a blind or two, discreetly, so that a softly diffused light flooded the room.

"H'm! I'm still young and pretty. Not so?" she inquired of the maid, as she turned and twisted the glass.

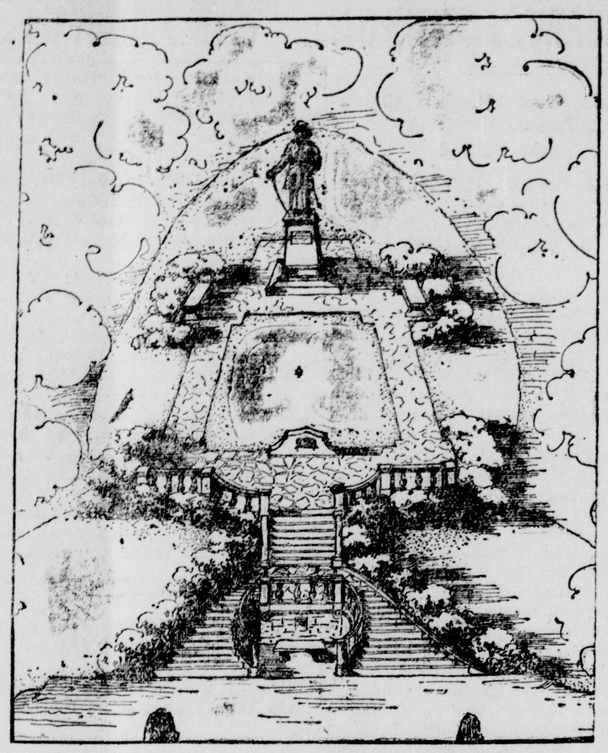

"Madame is beau-tee-ful!"

"Then I shan't hide my beauty! I will face the sunlight," said the Countess Dellamanca, beaming. "Call up Mr. Gary Chester and tell him I wish to lunch with him!"

A new French Process Powder called MELLO-GLO does these things. MELLO-GLO is truly wonderful. You will simply love it. Johnson's Pharmacy. —Advt

CHARLIE CHAPLIN in "THE CIRCUS"

Some idea as to the physical magnitude of Charlie Chaplin's production, "The Circus," which comes to the Lyceum theatre tonight for a three day run, may be had from figures compiled by George Webster, general statistician at the Chaplin studio.

Livestock housed at the Chaplin plant in Hollywood for a period of more than a year included elephants lions, tigers, horses, mules, monkeys, pigs, dogs, cats, ducks, pigeons and geese. To properly feed and care for such an assortment of guests the commissary department was required to handle for many months, food items that totalled more than sixty thousand pounds, the greater bulk of this being in beef and tons of hay, corn, carrots, potatoes and bread.
